

Teachers who indulge their political views

Teachers who expose students to the incomprehensible aren't teaching, they're indulging themselves, and taking an unwarranted risk.

NewsMedia, wallowing in untrustworthiness rooted in politics, are swamping campuses with wildly over imagined dramatizations of racism, misogyny, narcissism. All are far removed from realities, while education publishers are rewriting histories, ignoring law and integrity,

No child can understand, and no educator should treat and regard subjects of such extraordinary controversy, as if children in their charge were adults. Particularly if the educator can't even define the thing they are accusing others of.

The May 23, 2017 meeting of Hendry County's Board of Education witnessed a discussion of a highly placed Hendry county administrator, Lucinda Kelley, now deputy superintendent, expressing on social media, even if only momentarily before erasures, one of the unfortunate prejudices circulating in our country, white nationalism. The matter was concluded with appropriate intervention by the superintendent of schools.

The school district regulations state, "Postings to social media should be done in a manner sensitive to the staff member's professional responsibilities." She had disregarded that.

Social media, with its live audience and seeming freedom, suggests/implies that the new world is one of free expression. We can expect mistakes to be made experimenting along those lines before realization sets in that freedom comes with requirements.

Communication is not noise.

Unhinged people and out-of-their-minds juveniles, such as one screaming "fire" in a crowded theater, have not been taught that such behavior is prohibited. Freedom of speech is not a superficial pleasantry, it is to be maintained as the essential foundation of American democracy — which is frail — and must be regarded as a privilege for those who have a grasp of integrity in their words, and reality in their minds. It comes back to teachers.

Freedom of speech is abused everywhere, worst by our American media. A comedian holds aloft the simulated severed head of the most important officeholder in the world exactly as John Wilkes Booth performed on stage his encouragements to assassinate. Young people, particularly ill-educated ones with no idea who Booth was, have no idea what to think. The time becomes ripe for history to repeat itself.

Those teachers who think that total freedom of speech is more important than such events as assassinations are wrong. The Twentieth century's assassination had incalculable consequences.

At no time as today's has such an inexplicable depravity swamped our country's culture, and children in school cannot comprehend it from their daily doses of shallow propaganda.

Partaking in the chaos and pouring fuel on the fire is unacceptable. A teacher's career should not hinge on a thoughtless remark, such as Kelley's of a year ago.

But there can be no protecting faculty who are indulging themselves. This is not an economic equation. In the wake of the furor over school shootings and getting defenses underway, Board of Education policy was disregarded last week. Same woman as last time.

Every day in our leading institutions of higher education are clear indications of the woeful immaturity of young people. Children are absurdly made uncertain what sex they are. Last year someone named Heather Havrilesky declared "white nationalism is here," a false statement dramatizing a need for a dramatic battle cry. She went on, urging polarization where none was called for, "You don't get to be a natural brand or person." A teacher should have corrected her that America is designed for the self-reliant individual to have peaceable surroundings in which to work persistently to make his or her dreams come true. Those are the rules. And they're good rules, the best the human race has ever devised. Others enjoy more stability and less waste, perhaps. But no kingdoms, no corporate states, ever devised better.

Mesmerized, confused, distracted children have found out about it from conscientious teachers. Somebody declared on social media last year that "White people have a curious way of making me ashamed to be a white person," and Kelley endorsed that by sharing it around among her acquaintances, then added her own unprofessional twist, observing things were "so embarrassing I really wish Mr. Trump would stop acting like an eighth grade girl with PMS."

Teachers: Unless you've got EVIDENCE of racism, misogyny, narcissism etc., shut your mouth and get to work. Put your head down, teach the kids to work together, that we are one.

Former President Barack Obama on Wednesday seemingly joked to an audience at a Las Vegas tech conference that his eight-year presidency was scandal-free. "I didn't have scandals, which seems like it shouldn't be something you brag about," Obama said, according to Newsweek.

Bragging? Bragging???

Obama's Insinuation: if it wasn't news it must not have been significant, so he's here celebrated for coverups of his administration of nothing but concealed dysfunctions. Means newsmedia hid EVERYTHING. (Corporation control of information dissemination apparatus today still results in continued concealment of democracy's significant news)

Spy-games of the recent blacks-run administration

Spying apparatus was a toy shop to Obama's employees at play. No boundaries on personal behavior any more than national borders. Call it the "Obama Fling" years we now have to waste time eradicating, requiring the patience of Job, which Mr. Trump has in spades. Why couldn't Colin Powell have stepped up when he was needed? Did his bit for king and country and that was IT?

SPIKE LEE THROWING OUT THE GENOCIDE AGAIN Murdering the labor force? Spike Lee's the fool. America was built on money, only. Without business, notably the lucrative slave trade, Spike Lee's ancestry would've remained entirely African jungle primitives. ALL of them. He never would've been named "Spike" at all.

Culturally admissible

MS-13 raises mindless savagery to useless self-defeating levels, alien to itself beyond every other species, so in California they're quite well understood, thank you. Surely the kind words of our California politicians touched the hearts in every misunderstood MS-13 gang of killers

Electoral College = Stability:

There is in common usage the word "trigger" among young people. It's also an acknowledgment that they're prone to overreact, to panic under the slightest pressure, indicating they're so much of a collective, a hive, that unless reined in by a hovering individualistic adult, the entire body of young people will run wild, can't help but stampede in an arena at the sound of a detonation. Most of the dead were stampeded. Electoral College controversy results from the assault on the American National culture. The system is really dual, held in place by the rules in our American National culture: on higher levels for deciding matters of principle it's a republic, on lower municipal issues such as sanitation it's democracy where any form of socialism (Bridgeport 30 yrs McLevy) or dictator (Daley) is permitted. Origins of it all in Greece were plainer when people had classical educations such as the Founding Fathers. Thanks for nothing again to today's teachers.

Calling it . . . "FBI scandal?"

Idiotic to reduce the SWAMP corruption to the minimalizing "FBI scandal" title. Swamp included all intelligence gatherers, all newsmedia, leaderships of both parties, academia, United Nations, vastly influential fundraising apparatus and technology executives, and as always the filthy rich. The usual crowd deserving of trust. Necessary remedies were scary in 2016, when Dick Van Dyke, 90, said of Donald Trump, "He has been a magnet to all the racists and xenophobes in the country, I haven't been this scared since the Cuban Missile Crisis. I think the human race is hanging in a delicate balance right now, and I'm just so afraid he will put us in a war. He scares me." Correctly, the human race WAS hanging in a balance, thanks to the Obama fling through the centers of power. Racists, xenophobes, whatever, had superior insight and the courage to act, thank God.

The whole idea of a chain as a newspaper management concept is that resources may be reallocated from a paper with strong revenues to another with weaker. But which one of us, as readers, and as citizens of a community, would be satisfied to have our community paper weakened, its staff and supplies and its ability to present a cohesive image of our community activities to us all diminished, so that another community's paper, belonging to the same chain, perhaps one more favored by a faraway corporate manager, would thrive? This is why Hendry and Glades counties need a Sunday News that they can truly call their own.
